ADALPE DECLARES LIND'S PRES-ENCE IN MEXICO IS UNDE-SIRABLE UNLESS HU-

NIZED.

MATTERS AT A CRISIS

No Intimation is Given as to Next Move Which Will be Taken by President Wilson to Effect
a Peace Settlement.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]
Washington, Aug. 8.—After a conference with President Wilson at the White House today, Secretary Bryan announced he had received the message from Manuel Garza Adalpe, acting minister of foreign affairs declaring on behalf of President Huerta that the presence of John Lind would be undesirable in Mexico unless he brought recognition of the Huerta government.

No Change in Plans.
Mr. Bryan said that there was no change in plans with respect to Mr. Lind's mission. He declined to say what the nature of the American governments reply to the Adalpe message would be.

Secretary Bryan said that the message transmitted to the American embassy at Mexico City had been translated during the night and was presented early today to President Wilson. The president had taken the position that it was incredible that the Huerta government would refuse to receive an envoy bound on a peaceful mission. Receipt of today's message brought the situation to a diplomatic crisis.

Next Step Doubtful.
No intimation was forthcoming after the conference as to what the next step of the policy of the American government would be, but it was considered more than likely that the message of reply to the acting minister of foreign affairs further would outline the friendly intentions of the United States which would be expected by Mr. Lind and probably would suggest that judgment be withheld concerning Mr. Lind's mission until he had had an opportunity through the American embassy at Mexico City to transmit the views of President Wilson and Secretary Bryan.

Issues a Statement.
After a conference with President Wilson, Secretary Bryan today issued the following statement:

"The statement of the Mexican foreign office was based on misrepresentation for which this government is not responsible. In sending Mr. Lind as advisor to the embassy the president is entirely within his rights and this department will not assume that his going will be regarded as an endorsement of the character of his mission is understood."

Program of Peace.
Notwithstanding the unfavorable attitude of the Huerta government toward the mission of John Lind, personal representation of President Wilson, the administration here intends to follow out its program of peace toward Mexico to the letter, and hopes to gain the support of public opinion throughout the world by making known each step in its plans to foreign governments.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]
Duluth, Aug. 8.—While the striking dock workers were deliberating yesterday afternoon on the terms of a new agreement, the terms of which the chief executive is given power to veto to reduce items contained in any appropriation bills. Accompanying it was a message from the governor explaining the need for change in the fundamental law of the state.

"Such an amendment would effect no essential change in the power of the governor in respect to appropriation bills," the message concluded. "It would merely underwrite present tendency to eliminate him entirely from the consideration of them. It will only restore to him his former power and responsibility."

In opening his message Governor McGovern said that the increase in appropriations which he noted is larger in the aggregate than ever before.

"With a few unimportant exceptions," he says, "the bills have come to me in the form of anti-liquor bills, which I have therefore vetoed, to make it practically impossible to veto them, no matter what opinion I may hold as to the wisdom of some of their provisions."

As These Bills Have Come to Me During the Closing Days of the Session, There are Many Items in Them that Meet My Approval; a Number I Should Prefer to See Reduced in Amount, and Others I Should Like to Veto Altogether if I Had the Power. But no Chance to Do This or to Separate the Good from the Bad was Given Me. Under the Constitution I Can Neither Veto Specific Items in an Appropriation Bill, nor Reduce Specific Grants I May Think Excessive. The Only Alternative Presented, Therefore, was to Sign These Bills, Defective in a Number of Particulars as Regarded Them, or to Veto Them as a Whole. I Have Therefore Signed These Bills, but with Many Misgivings."

GOVERNOR SUGGESTS SIGNIFICANT CHANGE IN FUNDAMENTAL LAW

Senators Give Executive Power to Veto
Or Reduce Items Contained in Any Appropriation Bill.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]
Madison, Wis., Aug. 8.—Governor McGovern sent a proposed constitutional amendment to the legislature yesterday afternoon, by the terms of which the chief executive is given power to veto to reduce items contained in any appropriation bills. Accompanying it was a message from the governor explaining the need for change in the fundamental law of the state.

"Such an amendment would effect no essential change in the power of the governor in respect to appropriation bills," the message concluded. "It would merely underwrite present tendency to eliminate him entirely from the consideration of them. It will only restore to him his former power and responsibility."

Because it was one of the closing days of the session laxity in the enforcement of the senate rules of law was taken for granted by one member of the liquor lobby yesterday afternoon. ## Resubmit Mahon's Name.

For the second time Governor McGovern submitted the name of Thomas J. Mahon, assemblyman from the Sheboygan district, as a member of the state industry commission. The call of the senate followed immediately yesterday afternoon upon the investigation of opponents of the appointment, led by Senator Paul O. Husar, and Senator Henry A. Huber, republican.

The name of Mr. Mahon, which was rejected about two weeks ago by a vote of 9 to 11, was reintroduced as a candidate for the senate yesterday. Senator Aukley moved that the name be suspended and the appointment be considered at once. Hustling objected, and Huber moved a call of the house. An even five senators seconded the call of the house, but it was not elected. The doors were closed and the eighteen senators present faced the duty of spending the rest of the day and all night in the chamber and lobbies of the senate. Fourteen members absent without leave were immediately rebuffed by telephone by the sergeant-at-arms and told to come by the first train. Only four more senators favorable to Mr. Mahon were needed to raise the roll call to a majority of the senate. The appointment would have been confirmed with about eight votes to spare had the call of the house not been ordered. The lineup showed the Mahon men and their friends of the appointment present.

Submits Appointments.

Governor McGovern submitted the appointments of A. W. Sanborn, of Ashland, and J. H. Hutton, of Milwaukee, to succeed themselves on the state board of public affairs.

The governor signed the university and normal school appropriation bill, and the measure authorizing the Chicago and Flambeau Improvement company to construct dams and other power projects.

The governor was sustained on three unanimous, on another with one dissenting vote, and on the blue book bill by the vote of 11 to 7.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]
Washington, D. C., Aug. 8.—Senator Joseph E. Johnston, of Birmingham, Ala., died at his apartment here this morning shortly before nine o'clock.

Weakens Senate Majority.
The death of Senator Johnston weakens the democratic majority on the administration tariff bill in the senate. Though many leaders insist that there will still be no serious difficulty in passing the measure.

In the democratic senate caucus it was announced that forty-nine senators had declared they would support the bill on its final passage. At that time Senators Randall and Thornton of Louisiana were the only ones to declare they would vote against the bill because of the sugar schedule. On the basis of the caucus alignment democratic leaders figured that the vote on the tariff bill without defections from either side would be 48 to 47 for its passage. The death of Senator Johnston leaves the calculation 48 to 47.

Leaves No Margin.

In the event that any western senator who does not strongly favor free sugar might possibly vote against the bill, the margin would be counted on the vice president to fill the day in case of a tie. Senator Johnston's death, provided his seat is not filled before the vote on the tariff bill, removes the vice president from the range of possibility on any strict alignment.

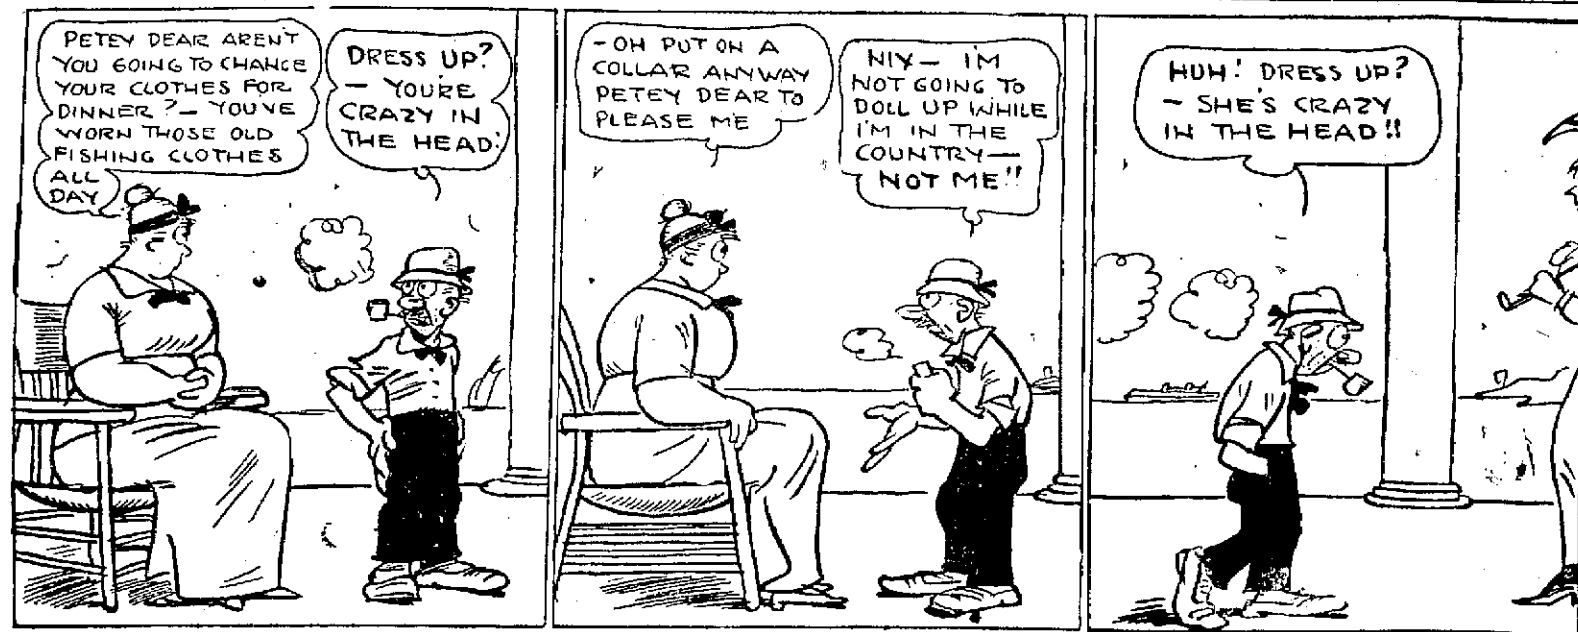

Should one vote be lost to the democrats on the basis of present forecast and no member of the minority come to their aid, the vote would stand 48 to 47 against the bill. There is still the possibility that at least

A girl in a transparent skirt with a lovely form broke up a ball game Thursday day. It took place in South Norwalk, Conn. The ninth inning of a game between the Nationals and Westports. The fair creature with the scantily garbed underpinnings happened to arrange herself directly between the outfielders of the Westport team and the sun and needless to say she had the undivided attention of all the Westport out-gardeners as well as quite a few others. The Westport players seemed unable to keep their minds on the game and so their manager simply called it off. The Nationals were ahead at this point and so the game went to them. They gave the young lady in the gossamer gown one assist in their box score.

that a pugilistic light has been kind under the same sort of a bushel. Young Joe Shugrue—pronounced Shoo-GROO, oh, don't mention it—said to be the easiest high weight proposition yet, and comparatively few seem aware of it. Jimmy Johnston of the St. Nicholas A. C. has matched Joe to meet Jack Britton Sept. 10, and it is expected that there will be a large and eager attendance. Shugrue is said to be all kidding aside—Willie Ritchie's most formidable rival, and from a passing glimpse at his record "licked Leach Cross, Young Brown, Sammy Robideau, Harry Stone, Johnny Lore, Matty Baldwin, Frankie Russell, Phil Brock, Pat Moore and One-Round Hogan. Shugrue is the more remarkable and interesting for the reason that he is as yet nothing more than a mere kid, being only in his teens. He has picked up all that he knows from three years' experience in the ring, in going up against Britton Joe is meeting a very clever boxer and one with a powerful punch. But Shugrue is right there on that stuff too. And his friends look to see him hand Jack Britton quite a surprise.

Matty Baldwin and Willie Ritchie are perhaps the only flat-footed fighters of the present day. Like Joe Gans, Jack Johnson and Sam Langford, they fight flat-footed and circle continually about their opponents, making the other man create his own opening. They are all waiters, holding back and looking for the chance to slip over the punch that will drop the curtain. Baldwin admits that he is not so sure of himself as he once declared that Ritchie is and that when Willie finally sees the chance to shove his right across to the jaw everyone can get up and go home. Fighters today, says Matty, are weak on the headwork and make the mistake of trying to hit too often.

BUTTERS FORCES

IN RUN, EDGERTON WINNING 1 TO 0

Crandall Pitching for Edgerton Allows Cards But Four Hits, In Great Pitcher's Battle.

George Crandall, a regular Cardinal hurler, pitched against his own aggregation of ball players yesterday at Edgerton, and beat Butters in a great pitching battle, the score standing one to nothing. Crandall allowed but four hits, while Butters was wild at times, and also issued five bingles. Twelve strikeouts are credited to each pitcher, which goes to show that the game was a real struggle.
Joe Ryan was robbed of a homer in the eighth inning, when the drive hit an automobile in center field, bounding back, within reach of the fielder, who held him at third base.
The game was airtight, neither side being able to score. At many times during the combat there were several men on the bags, but pop flies and soft grounders were easily handled in time to retire each side as the case was.
Both pitchers were in rare form, Crandall having a little better of a bargain, because of his more perfect control. Butters was also in form, with the one exception of his wildness. If it were not for his wildness, he would today be a regular hurler in the big leagues. The belief of many of the local fans. That opinion is undoubtedly true.
The line-up for yesterday's game is as follows:
Janesville: Ryan, 2b; Sullivan, rf; Porter, 1b; Holl, ss; Wooten, 3b; Butters, p; Nebr, cf; Berger, 1b; Wilson, c; Stewart and Berger, subs.
Edgerton: Whitford, 1b; Raddant, cf; Frevorrah, ss; Telford, 3b; Crandall, p; Cleve, 1b; Hanser, 2b; Hansen, cf; E. Whitford, rf.
Score by innings:
Edgerton . . . 0 1 0 0 0 0 0 0—1
Three base hits, Ryan. Base on balls, off Butters, 1; off Crandall, 2. Struck out by Butters, 12; by Crandall, 12. Hit by pitcher, by Butters 2; by Crandall Nebr. Umpire Koch of Janesville.

MONOPLANE IN RACE WITH A FAST TRAIN

Aviator Wood Has Thirty-five Minute Margin at Baltimore in New York to Washington Flight.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]
New York, Aug. 8.—Cheered by a group of fifty early risers C. Murvin Wood, set out from the Hempstead Plains on Long Island at 4:30 A. M. today in a monoplane to race with a Pennsylvania railroad train which left Jersey City, N. J., at 4:30 A. M. Wood hopes to overcome the handicap of 30 miles in distance and six minutes in time which the train had.

Makes First Stop.
After a wide circle over the neighboring town of Westbury to get his bearings and satisfy himself that his machine was working satisfactory, Wood pointed westward directly over Coney Island and was soon lost to sight in the fog. At New Brunswick, N. J., where he expected first touch the actual course of the train he was reported at 5:34, twenty minutes after the train had passed. He was flying so high that he could hardly be seen. The train was due in Washington, 225 miles away at 9:30.

Loses His Way.
Washington, Aug. 8.—Aviator Wood landed at Gaithersburg, Md., just outside of Washington at 9 o'clock. He lost his way at Baltimore, and made a landing in the field with slight damage. He will resume the flight to Port Myer after repairs.
Just as soon as he landed Wood called Washington on the telephone:

"I lost my way at Baltimore," he said, "the smoke was so thick. I was about 7,000 feet over the city and then came down to about 1,000 feet. Then my motor stopped and I had to land. I will resume the flight as soon as my motor can be put in condition."
The aviator in his monoplane passed over Baltimore thirty-five minutes ahead of the arrival at Union station here of the Pennsylvania train which he is racing to Washington.

Endurance Record.
The American record for endurance sustained flight and non-stop flying all are held by Lieut. Thomas Dow Milling, U. S. Army, whose official figures are 250 miles from Texas City to San Antonio, Texas in three hours and ten minutes. He remained in the air flying for one hour and seventy-nine minutes, after reaching San Antonio making his endurance figures four hours and twenty-seven minutes.

FOURTH WARD SLUGGERS TO PLAY BELLOIT EAGLES SUNDAY

The local ward line will line up against the Beloit Collie Hill Eagles next Sunday at Yost Park for the fourth time this season. Beloit boast of a new battery and that they will show the local bunch how to play ball. Le Feir and Spohn will compose the local battery. The game will be played in the morning, or about noon, to make way for the afternoon struggle between the Janesville Cardinals and the Beloit Moose. The fourth warders have won two games from this certain Beloit nine, and have dropped one contest to them. Beloit are anxious to tie up matters.

WILSON AND MEXICO.

From certain of the Jingo press dispatches we are informed that President Huerta of Mexico is accepting the mission of special Ambassador Lugo, sent by President Wilson, and that if this event occurs, armed intervention will follow. Everyone apparently realizes the situation as regards Mexico is tense at this time and that if something snaps, serious trouble, possibly an armed conflict, may follow, but it is not probable.

The Christian Science Monitor discusses President Wilson and his attitude toward Mexico as follows:

"If the United States had not realized before the development of the Mexican problem to its present complexity that it had in the White House an official who was able to stand calmly and immovably by his own convictions as to national duty, it cannot have failed now to reach that conclusion. The pressure upon the administration to take a part in the Mexican conflict is unquestionably great. It comes from various directions. The senate has its group of ardent interventionists, recognizable under this new name as the statesmen who have for years been deliberate views on national glory. The house of representatives has its considerable number of members, possibly a majority, not traditionally prudent but keen for the doughty. Foreign powers are represented as greatly annoyed at the supineness—that is the word in the dispatches—of the administration when there are great, very great investments in the troubled country that are in peril of depreciation. But the president stands, and withstands."

"No great expectation is evident in the discussion of the matter that mediation, upon which the president has fixed his hopes, can be accomplished. The consent of the parties is not seemingly possible. But a firm stand for the honorable course, that of some concession by each party and of deference to the good of the land and to the peace of the world, has often proved a potent calmer of disputes. Mr. Roosevelt's service at Portsmouth is not forgotten, and no prospect was ever less promising of a solution. Failing to find acceptance for his project of mediation, the president still has the only one of seeming promise of permanence, the settlement of Mexican troubles by Mexicans. The argument that there will be no permanent settlement until the United States goes strongly and well armed into Mexico may be said to have logic to the extent that it would be permanent employment for the intervening country."

The shifting events of a week are ample, it would seem, to show the need of a calm and firm stand at Washington.

NEED OF MONEY.

Perhaps Mr. Bryan did not take the suggestion of the Texas community that they would raise four thousand dollars for him to help drive the wolf away from the secretary of state's front door, seriously, but it voices the sentiment of republicans and democrats alike. Bryan accepted the portfolio of state from President Wilson, knowing the salary and the cost of living. No one knew it better. He had decided the idea of a government official needing any excess pay. Had criticized cabinet officers for wanting an increase of twelve thousand, and yet the moment he obtains office he revolts. For true Jeffersonian democracy it is an example that does not fit well with previous statements.

An exchange comments on Bryan and his salary, comparing the present situation to that of Wisconsin's United States Senator John C. Spooner, who resigned his office when he found his salary was not sufficient to meet the demands made upon him.

"When John C. Spooner was in the senate he held that to continue his law practice would be incompatible with the duty of devoting his entire time and effort to his public office. The public was entitled to it."

"Mr. Spooner was an idealist on that point."

"Not so Mr. Bryan, who now announces that he will continue to fill his usual chautauqua engagements. He says he needs the money."

"One's impression is that he does not need the money nearly so much as Mr. Spooner did. Mr. Spooner was a poor man when he left the senate in order to resume his law practice and provide for the future of his family."

"But, however, Secretary Bryan says frankly that he is 'forced' to continue on the chautauqua circuit, of which he has been a leading (and we supposed handsomely remunerated) attraction for the last eighteen years, because his official salary is 'not sufficient to cover my expenses.'"

"The general impression has been that Mr. Bryan is a rich man and possessed of an independent fortune, whose income, plus his present salary, would easily enable him to live and entertain like Lucullus, if he chose to do so. He was even suggested for ambassador at St. James."

"But it seems we were all mistaken. A man of democratic simplicity of living, at whose official dinners fermented and inexpensive grape juice flows like champagne, he must, nevertheless, eke out his salary by lecturing. If the state department suffers by his absences and business pre-occupations, why, so much the worse for it."

"Mr. Bryan is a great idealist in his speeches, but a strictly practical person between whistles. One recalls the lumberman who always let whisky alone between drinks. The country is fond of Mr. Bryan personally and will regret to learn of his necessities condition, peculiarly."

"But we supposed the chautauqua paid better for its big guns. However, as state secretary, Mr. Bryan should be able to raise his chautauqua rates."

One grudge that most people harbor against the piano tuner is that, after he goes away, the family next day pounds the piano with renewed vigor and enthusiasm.

If the express business actually shouldn't survive the parcel post and the interstate commerce commission, there'd be a spirited contest for the credit.

Presumably, before deciding to experiment with the best sting cure for rheumatism, Mayor Shank tried carrying a potato in his pocket.

Another curious thing about slit trousers or any other irrational garment is that somnolence is always willing to make the experiment.

It may be, too, that President Huerta cannot resign because he has contracted the habit of laying by $10,000 a year or more.

The White House is being re-furnished for the Wilson-Sayre wedding. It would be a crusty landlord who wouldn't do that much.

They say Senator Castro is only a peon and peddler. But is not Secretary Bryan himself a commoner and speller?

Secretary Daniels has ordered a couple of new torpedo boat destroyers. How about a few naval base destroyers?

But what are those "other organizations" that wish to borrow the naval militia training ships—lobbies or chautauquas?

It is always well to look before you leap. A California man tried to hang himself and was killed by an accidental fall.

It is now possible to buy a $1,000 fur coat for $980 or less, but some persons are so unlucky as not to want one now.

PURE MOMENT
The corner fader used to stand and hold a bottle in his hand. He used to entertain the crowd by telling them in accents loud. This medicine would cure all ills. And took the place of salt and pills. It cured the gout and housemaid's knee.

The jaundiced, spinal misery, Appendicitis, rheumatism, And almost any ill that is, Including shingles, spavin, pip, Rheumatism, influenza, grip, Tonsillitis, falling hair, Corns and bunions and nightmare. And he threw in with his dope One nice cake of shaving soap, Twelve lead pencils, fountain pen, Writing paper, tin for men, Rubber comb and penknife, too, Twelve glass cutters, tried and true; Pocket handkerchief of silk, Bottle for the baby's milk; Nearly a department store. He'd throw in and reach for more. How they fought to get his stuff. Couldn't reach him quick enough; Dollar bills were his delight. Got three hundred every night. His cure gave out by and by. And he'd make a fresh supply. At a very slight expense—Seven gallons, 15 cents. Where's the fader and his hope? Gone forever, let us hope.

The Diary of a Bonehead.
While the guardian angel of our household was taking a vacation on high Olympus and leaving us to our own resources one day, my wife began making canoe. After she had made eighteen canoes of various patterns, it suddenly occurred to her that we had no canoe. I have never had any particular respect for any man who held a dynamite cracker in his teeth or who went out in a canoe and an ambition to own one of the birch-bark contraptions which can dance the Tango on a perfectly quiet body of water had never come to me. Having the pillows all made, my wife insisted on the canoe and I went to one of our leading canoeists and bought one. I picked out a docile looking canoe, one that looked as though it could be driven with perfect safety by women and children and would be out of the hands. It was one of the gentlest looking canoes I had ever seen, but a canoe is like a mule. One must never go on appearance. I once knew a mule with the pleasantest face I had ever seen on a mule but it could kick a hired man through the side of a barn quicker than an Alabama congressman can vote against a pension bill.

That canoe developed more artistic temperament to the square inch when I got out into the water than any of Oscar Hammerstein's prima donnas ever had in her whole frame.

That canoe actually smiled at me and almost rubbed against me and purred while I was showing it into the water but once upon the bosom of the placid lake with me astride of its washbone with a paddle in my hand, it did more tricks than a monkey can do with a coconut.

I had paddled seven strokes, toward the lighthouse when the canoe took the bit in her teeth and turned around and made back for the shore. After we arrived at the shore, from which we had only recently taken I got on the beach and turned the canoe around, kindly but firmly and started to paddle again, in the direction of the lighthouse. I had just taken the fifteenth stroke when something happened which will never be able to explain. Without a sign of warning, the canoe turned bottom up. With me underneath, I then began a Gitch-Hackschmidt bout for the supremacy of the sea. I was on top half the time and the canoe was on top the other half. First I got a half-Nelson on the canoe and then a hammerlock and finally I tried a toe hold but I couldn't keep that canoe under me more than a half second at a time.

I tried to think of all the wrestling tricks I had learned in the high school gymnasium twenty years before, but the canoe knew more tricks than I did and better ones. I tried to grab it around the neck and strangle it. I got my knee in its chest and tried to strangle it. The canoe slipped out of my toe holds in three minutes. I coaxed and I coaxed and I threatened but the canoe would not be bribed, cajoled or intimidated. It threw me three times every time I threw it. One and meantime we were drifting out far past the life line.

At last after the canoe had pinned me down on my back for what seemed like fifteen minutes, a school-boat came along in a rowboat and pried it off from my almost lifeless form and took me ashore.

That was yesterday. Today the life insurance company cancelled my policy. Tonight a trusty henchman is going to seek out that canoe and for $10 in cash, reduce it to ashes. The pillows will go in the church box for the beathen of Madagascar.

Heart to Heart Talks

By JAMES A. EDGERTON

THE RAILWAY MAIL CLERK.

Did you ever see one of the fast mail trains on a trunk line railroad?

It is an impressive sight even from the outside. It is more impressive if seen from within.

Every one of these cars, whirling along at fifty or sixty miles an hour, is a hive of industry.

Mail clerks occupy almost every available foot of space. With fingers working with lightning speed they sort the letters, each according to its destination or route, tie them into bundles and put them into their right pouches.

Each of these cars is a postoffice on wheels.

I recall the case of one clerk who was killed in a railroad wreck seventeen years ago. I heard a prominent congressman say of him repeatedly that he was "the best mail clerk that ever slung a sack."

He won a national medal in two competitive examinations. He threw the cards of his entire division, then comprising something like 18,000 offices, with but nineteen mistakes and did it in an incredibly short time.

He went through several wrecks, but happened to come out unscathed. Finally he was killed in his car and at his post of duty.

His case is but typical of thousands of others, for these servants of Uncle Sam must not only be trained to a point of efficiency superior to that of soldiers, but they must face practically the same chance of being maimed or killed that soldiers face.

The railway mail service is the backbone of the postal system.

It covers practically every line of roads in the land. On its efficiency depends the prompt and accurate delivery of the mails.

It requires not only quickness of eye and of hand, but retentive memory and alert intelligence.

Yet these railway mail clerks do not receive particularly high pay, and they are practically unknown to the public.

They work at a killing speed and frequently for long hours.

Letters containing the aggregate vast sums of money pass through their hands. Yet the cases of dishonesty among them have been surprisingly few.

Each missive they handle may be of vital importance to somebody—may carry messages of life or death, of love, of important business transactions.

The next letter you receive, reflect on what it represents.

It has been in many hands, all intent on serving you.

It is carried to you by a vast business organization, a complex machine touching every home in the land.

And—

The most important cog in that machine is the railway mail clerk.

The Passover. Ex. xiii:1-12.

Golden Text—The Son of man came not to be ministered unto, but to minister, and to give his life a ransom for many. Matt. xx:28.

(1) Verses 1-3—How does God today convey his messages to his people other than through the Bible?

(2) What reason is there to believe that there never was a time when God did not in some way communicate with his people?

(3) Verses 4-6—Who were the persons that had to provide the lamb to keep this passover?

(4) What would you say was the reason that God made this passover a family ceremony rather than congregational?

(5) Which would you say is the more important, and why, the church or the home?

(6) What is the relative importance of congregational and family worship?

(7) Verses 7-10—Why was the blood of the lamb to be sprinkled on the two side posts and on the upper doorposts of the houses?

(8) What is the ground of a Christian's hope of salvation?

(9) How was the flesh of the lamb to be cooked, and in what manner was it to be eaten?

(10) Verses 11-13—What was the reason that they had to eat it in such haste with every preparation for a journey?

(11) Ought we to eat all our meals, and why, in readiness for sudden departure from this life?

(12) Why did God visit Egypt with this awful calamity of slaying the first-born in all their homes?

(13) What is the proof that sin always results in death?

(14) Verses 14-20—From that day until now what has been the attitude of the Jews to this feast of the passover?

(15) What is the difference between the passover feast and the feast of unleavened bread?

(16) What does "leaven" stand for when used figuratively in the Bible?

(17) What has been the practical benefit of this annual memorial service?

(18) Of what benefit are memorials generally and particularly of the sacrament of the Lord's Supper?

(19) Verses 21-28—What time of the day were they to commence this passover feast?

(20) What are the chief features in connection with this feast, and in what order did they come?

(21) Suppose that any family had neglected to sprinkle the blood, as they had been commanded, what would probably have been the result?

(22) In what way does this passover feast, as practiced by the Jews today, prove that this account of the slaughter of the first-born in Egypt is true?

(23) Verses 29-33—What effect does an awful personal or family calamity generally have upon hitherto hardened sinners?

(24) Why did not Pharaoh, and why do not so many other rulers, who are in the grip of death? (This is one of the questions which may be answered by members of the club.)

(25) Verses 34-36—When the Egyptians gave of their treasures to the Israelites, did they expect any return?

(26) Verses 37-42—How many years had Israel been in Egypt; how many went in, and how many came out?

PICTURES ON FINGER NAILS

One of Latest Fads in Germany, Growing Out of Whim of Cousin of the Kaiser.

One of the latest fads in Germany is the mounting of photographs on the finger nails, the idea growing out of the whim of a cousin of the Kaiser.

who had an enameled portrait of her fiancé worked on the nail of her little finger, says the Popular Mechanics. This portrait was a work of art and cost $90, but now the fashionable mania of Berlin have taken up the idea in the photograph form.

The feature of this work by manicures is rendering the photograph waterproof, which is done by coating it over with a shellac-like substance burned upon the nail. It is said that, with careful handling, a photograph so mounted will last about four months without renewal.

L. S. DUDLEY DROPS DEAD IN HIS CHAIR

Engineer at High School Passes
Away Suddenly.—Served as Pall
Bearer at Funeral Yesterday.

Yesterday a pall bearer at the funeral of a friend, the late Harvey B. Walker, and apparently in good health, L. S. Dudley, engineer at the high school building and a prominent Mason, dropped dead at 5:20 o'clock this morning while seated in a chair and reading a newspaper at his home, 205 Linn street. His death is a severe shock to his family and friends and to the members of the Board of Education who regarded him as one of their most valuable employees. He had served as engineer for seventeen years or more and was very capable, saving the city much expense through his ability to do work ordinarily requiring the services of steam-fitters and plumbers.

Mr. Dudley was born in Berkshire county, Mass., in 1853 and came to Wisconsin with his parents six months later. Surviving him and mourning his departure are his widow, two sons, Nelson C. and L. J. Dudley, and one daughter, Nellie Dudley. He was a member of West-ern Star lodge No. 14 P. and A. M., No. 5 R. A. M., and Janesville Commandery No. 2 Knights Templar.

Funeral services will be conducted at the home at 2 o'clock next Monday with service being in charge of the Masons. The Rev. Father Willmann, rector of Trinity church, will be the officiating clergyman.

FAMILY DISTURBED BY NIGHT ROVERS

Walter Horn Claims That Unknown
Stranger Frequent His Premises
On Mineral Point Avenue.

Complaints that some unknown person frequents his premises at night, making strange noises, and frightening his family, have been made by Walter Horn, an employee of the Janesville Steam Dye Works, residing at 1830 Mineral Point avenue, but the police have been unable to find the least trace of the alleged interlopers. About two weeks ago Patriman Sam Johnson responded to calls from that place and made futile searches. Last week Thursday Mr. Horn and Lester Carr were awakened by noises and on examining the premises found a man standing on the back porch. They fired at him, and the man thought they saw him drop out the door. The disturbance occurred Friday and Saturday night but have not been noticed during the past week. The intruder has a habit of rapping on windows and doors. Mrs. Horn has been so untroubled by the mystery annoy-ance that she has gone to the home of a sister in La Crosse until their source can be determined.

DOG THOUGHT TO BE MAD MAKES VICIOUS ATTACKS

J. L. Snyder, 1240 Court street, was attacked several times this morning by a vicious dog which he kept at a distance with a garden rake and knocked him down each time he approached. The dog, which belongs to Mrs. James living on Ringold acted very savagely, running around the house, knocking down flower-pots on a porch and apparently having a violent fit of some kind. The police were called and when they arrived the animal had gone home. Mr. Snyder thought the safety of the community required that the dog be killed but the police were unwilling to kill it without the assent of the owner, which was refused.

PETITION FOR TWO TEMPORARY WALKS

Many People Would Have Two Temporary Foot-Bridges Maintained
During Bridge Construction.

Petitions to the council for two temporary foot bridges across the river on Milwaukee street, to be maintained during the progress of construction of the permanent bridge, were circulated among the businessmen of the city this morning and received a large number of signatures. The council proposed to maintain one on the north side of the old bridge, but the petitioners ask that one be built on the south side as well. Merchants on the south side of the bridge approaches fear that if a north side bridge only is built that it will result in a serious loss of business. With the piles of material and machinery on the approaches, people crossing the bridge will not be able to enter their stores without walking to the end of the block and crossing the street. The public, like water and electricity, follows the line of least resistance.

Workmen in the employ of the Gould Construction Company continued today to unload cars of material and machinery for the construction of the bridge and haul them to the west approach of the bridge where work will be begun. The east approach is still clear of material as work will not be started there for several days. The tool house is nearly completed. The street railway passengers transfer cars after crossing the bridge.

LATER CROPS NEED FAVORABLE WEATHER

Large Amount of Small, Backward Tobacco Noted Throughout Rock County District.

It would seem to anyone who traveled over the tobacco growing sections August 1st that there is a good deal of small, late tobacco that needs the very best of weather conditions to see it safely through the harvest. While the state has had an abundance of rain, possibly too much, the fields are not making the headway of other years under similar favorable weather. It is claimed, and probably is true, that the plant roots have been kept too near the surface and have not penetrated the soil deep enough to give the usual fast development. This might account also for slow growth of some fields and the lack of spread of leaf after event a crop of average size and quality is not yet made and a full month or six weeks will be necessary with the most favorable weather conditions to bring about a satisfactory tobacco crop. The portion of the crop ready for topping about the 15th looks like the better prospects at this writing. —Edgerton Reporter.

GOOD RACE PROGRAM OFFERED THURSDAY

Fox Lake Horse Makes Good Showing in Free For All—Fenelon's Horse Wins 2:20 Trot.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]
Edgerton, Aug. 8.—The race program for the closing day of the T. A. and B. society picnic was all that could be desired. Three good events, each with heats marked by neck and neck finishes, were sufficient for the afternoon's entertainment and were pulled off with dispatch on the part of Sturges High School.

One of the best races was the free for all in which Spill, owned by R. O. Williams of Fox Lake, took the money while Addition, a Rockford horse, made a strong bid in the last two heats. Golden Rod, an early favorite, failed to show form.

In the 2:20 trot Fred Harding, owned by Fenelon of Ripon, came up from second and third place in the first two heats to first in the last three, taking the money. Rainy Day, a Wheaton, Ill. horse, was a consistent bidder for the honors.

The 2:30 pace was not so close although there were several. Cream of Wheat, owned at Depers, Wis., won the race by taking the fifth heat. Bessie Hal, owned by Weeks of Rockford, promised to spring a surprise after the third heat which she won, but failed to keep up the pace.

An accident marred the third heat of this race. The drivers of Franklin Boy, Alice Own and Jessie M. were unseated on the first turn as the result of a locking of sulks. Two of the horses broke away and Alice Own was captured in a corn field. Neither horses nor drivers were hurt.

GOOD RACE PROGRAM OFFERED THURSDAY

Fox Lake Horse Makes Good Showing in Free For All—Fenelon's Horse Wins 2:20 Trot.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]
Edgerton, Aug. 8.—The race program for the closing day of the T. A. and B. society picnic was all that could be desired. Three good events, each with heats marked by neck and neck finishes, were sufficient for the afternoon's entertainment and were pulled off with dispatch on the part of Sturges High School.

One of the best races was the free for all in which Spill, owned by R. O. Williams of Fox Lake, took the money while Addition, a Rockford horse, made a strong bid in the last two heats. Golden Rod, an early favorite, failed to show form.

In the 2:20 trot Fred Harding, owned by Fenelon of Ripon, came up from second and third place in the first two heats to first in the last three, taking the money. Rainy Day, a Wheaton, Ill. horse, was a consistent bidder for the honors.

The 2:30 pace was not so close although there were several. Cream of Wheat, owned at Depers, Wis., won the race by taking the fifth heat. Bessie Hal, owned by Weeks of Rockford, promised to spring a surprise after the third heat which she won, but failed to keep up the pace.

An accident marred the third heat of this race. The drivers of Franklin Boy, Alice Own and Jessie M. were unseated on the first turn as the result of a locking of sulks. Two of the horses broke away and Alice Own was captured in a corn field. Neither horses nor drivers were hurt.

WEATHER CONDITIONS

An extensive area of low atmospheric pressure, of which the center is over northern Manitoba, occupies the interior of the continent. Showers and thunderstorms have attended it throughout the northern and northwestern states from Michigan to Montana. Higher temperatures prevail throughout the Mississippi and Missouri valleys and the upper lake regions.

The barometer is high on the Atlantic and Pacific coasts, and the weather is generally fair there.

Narcotic Cartridge Invented.

Karl Burgesmuller of Kreleisen, Germany, has devised a means for temporarily narcotizing animals—i. e., rendering them insensible. He fills a cartridge with a mixture composed of substances containing capcine in an immediately gasifiable form, and of an easily inflammable substance to accelerate the gasification. This is combined with a small quantity of an explosive agent between the mixture and an explosive cap with which the cartridge is provided. Possibly this is the explosive of the pistols sold for rendering burglars insensible.

FITNESS IN FASHIONS.

"A PLACE for everything and everything in its place," is a proverb which is usually applied solely to order in the home. Now I have a new, and what I think is just as good an application for it. And that is to order and fitness in fashions.

You don't see just what I mean? Very well, then, the next time you walk down the street or ride on the trolley car, please notice how many women you see with small faces and disproportionately big hats. Large hats with graceful, sweeping curves, are certainly very pretty and artistic, but don't you think they lose all their beauty when they are placed on the wrong head?

The fashion of wearing collarless gowns and blouses, even on the street, is certainly an effective style for the woman whose full, white throat can stand the sharp line of a dark coat against it. But for the woman with the scraggly, yellow neck it is the most unbecoming fashion possible. And yet the latter lady almost invariably cuts down her gowns and bares her scraggly throat to the keenness of winter winds and critical eyes. You see, it has never occurred to her that "a place for everything and everything in its place," might be applied to fashions as well as to homes and offices.

But the thin woman is not by any means the only one who offends the law of fitness in dressing. The accordion plating which is so strongly in favor just now is an exquisite thing when worn by slim people, but could anything be more absurd than to see a fat woman making herself look still larger by wearing an accordion platted gown? And yet that is what we see everywhere.

"Hunter's pink," in other words a crude, bright red, is one of the colors that is going to be much worn this season. And despite its exceedingly trying quality, I can prophesy with sad surety that it is going to be worn by young and old, sallow and clear skinned, plain and pretty, most of all, of course, by those who most should shun it.

The persistency with which we admire and wear styles which are simply impossible for us in reality pathetic. I suppose it is partly due to the psychological fact that we are apt to admire our opposites and consequently to like the style which harmonizes with them and fights with us.

Nothing is beautiful unless it is also suitable.

Every woman who learns that principle and dresses by it has a mighty good chance of being well dressed.

Monotony in planning meals is the only thing which every housekeeper tries to avoid. It is the one thing which adds zest to a meal, not to know just what is coming and when it does, have it with a new dress which fits the particular time or season.

This is the season when many people are traveling and they find a new dish which suits their taste or fancy so they secure the recipe and add it to their own collection of good recipes.

It is surprising how short a distance one has to go from home to find food of a served characteristic of that particular place. I remember once going to a very small town near here to lecture and was "put up" at the only hotel in the town. While I am not hard to please, I pictured myself with a very good appetite when I reached home that night. But to my surprise it was the most delicious home-cooked dinner I ever sat down to from chicken and baked noodles to custard pie.

Afterward, upon inquiry, I found this woman who knew this art of cooking so well, was famous for her chicken and baked noodles, so here they are:

Chicken and Baked Noodles.

The chicken is cooked slowly as for any fricassee of chicken, being well cut up. When nearly done, remove to a spider and brown in butter. Cook succulent home-made noodles in this boiling stock fifteen minutes, and then turn them into a greased baking pan, putting bits of butter, fine bread crumbs and cheese over the top and baking in a hot oven. If the oven is too slow they will be dry and hard. Gravy is then made from the chicken stock, a well beaten egg added to it and poured over the chicken on a hot platter.

Material: Corn, one can, or one dozen fresh ears; water, one pint; onion, one or two slices; sweet milk, one pint; salt and pepper to taste; flour, one tablespoon; butter, one tablespoon; egg, one.

Directions: Chop the corn until fine, adding the water and onion and allow to cook from twenty to thirty minutes. Remove from stove and strain. To this add milk, salt and white pepper and thicken with flour and butter mixed. Just before removing to serve add the egg, which has been beaten very light, and a half cup of whipped cream. Serve with cream of corn soup.

Perfection Cabbage Salad.
Material: Vinegar, one-half pint; eggs, two; sugar, two tablespoons; salt, one teaspoon; butter, one tablespoon; flour, two tablespoons; milk, one-half cup; cabbage, one quart; mustard, one tablespoon.

Directions: Heat, but not boil, the vinegar. Stir into it the beaten eggs, sugar, salt, butter and flour mixed with the milk. When it commenced to thicken add the cabbage chopped fine, cook only a moment, then remove from the fire and stir in the mustard mixed with a little water.

Poor Man's Pudding.
Material: Graham flour, two cups; molasses, one cup; sweet milk, one cup; chopped raisins, one cup; soda, one teaspoon; salt, one saltspoonful.
Directions: Stir these ingredients for three hours over the fire in a fireless cooker and serve with a sauce.

Sauce.
Material: Sugar, one cup; butter, one tablespoon; yolks of two eggs; juice and grated rind of one-half lemon; boiling water, five tablespoons; white of one egg; sweet cream.

Directions: Beat thoroughly together sugar, butter, and yolks of eggs. To this add the boiling water and juice and rind of lemon and just before serving add the beaten white of an egg and a small quantity of sweet cream.

Veal Souffle.
Material: Milk, one cup; onion, one slice; parsley, one sprig; bit of bay leaf; butter, one-half tablespoon; flour, one-half tablespoon; stale soft bread crumbs, one-fourth cup; cooked veal, one cup; yolk of egg, two; whites of eggs, two.
Directions: Scald milk with onion, parsley and bay leaf. Remove scum, strain, melt butter and add flour and milk; then add bread crumbs. Cook two minutes, remove from fire, add veal finely chopped and yolks of eggs well beaten. Fold in whites beaten until stiff and mix. Turn into a buttered baking dish set in a pan of hot water and bake in a slow oven twenty-five minutes. Serve with white mushroom sauce.

The Poet Philosopher

BY WALT MASON

Summer rapidly is trotting to the dump where years are rotting, and we soon may cease our swatting, cease to worry of the flies; we may cease our wild despairing days.

BETTER cease our tantrums and our tearing, cease our sweating and our swearing underneath the blazing skies.

Thus it is with every evil from lust to laziness, from envy to greed, and so to peevish never help us out a bit; better say, when things are rocky, when the world seems jabberwocky, and all our nines are acting helky: "All our troubles soon will fly!" Mundane things are ever passing, so there is no use in wasting, there is no sense in assuaging Madame Fortune day by day; all the ills we want, and kick at, all the woes we throw a brick at, all the griefs we stall and stick at, soon, full soon, will pass away. When we're hot we surely show it, saying things to shock a poet, rude things—then, before we know it, summer has gone up the flume, having run this thing of frustration, we, with blizzards round us flying, watch the wintry weather, sighing in a brand new kind of gloom.

One Cause of Family Trouble.

Good Dr. Josiah Oldfield has discovered that "although marriages are made in heaven, they are too often marred at the breakfast table." But we find that they are still oftener marred at the dinner table. This is because of small platters. Statistics teach us that 9.4 husbands out of every ten carve on platters so ruinous to tablecloths, shirt fronts, coiffures, wall paper, ceilings and the moral nature of man, woman and child that the only logical consequence is dispute.

HEART and HOME PROBLEMS
BY MRS. ELIZABETH THOMPSON

Dear Mrs. Thompson: (1) We are two sisters of sixteen and nineteen and we are going with boys seventeen and twenty. We have been going a year and a half and are deeply in love. They often tell us that they love us. What can we do to get them to propose?

(2) Is it wrong for boys to give jewelry as presents before they are engaged?

(3) We live with our big brother and he has a girl. Is it any harm for our boy friends to stay at the house with us until he gets home, if it is 2 o'clock?

(4) Is it dangerous for us to stay at home by ourselves when brother is away?

(5) That's a question as old as the world, my dear. You can't make a man propose if he doesn't want to, and when he wants to you can't shoe him off. Just be patient and make yourselves agreeable, and if they want to marry you they'll tell you so when they get ready.

(6) It is not proper. Nice girls won't accept such presents.

(7) It is very wrong, and your brother is very inconsiderate to leave you alone to such a late hour.

I think it is.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I am a girl of sixteen. Some time ago I met a boy of twenty. He fell in love with me. I liked him very well at first and would have loved to love him but he is so jealous he disgusts me. He wanted me to marry him. I told him I might, in a joke. He took it for granted and told me if I did not marry him in four months he would kill both himself and me.

(1) What shall I do? I am almost afraid to go out with other boys. I am afraid he will say something to me on the street to cause disturbance.

(2) Is my writing very bad? I have not had very good schooling. Please advise me, as I have no mother.

Every Day Talks for Every Day People
By FRANCIS JOYCE KENNEDY

Conservation is a word so big and important looking that it frightens the most of us. The idea behind it is as old as the hills themselves. We have several words in common use that mean about the same, "economy, thrift and frugality," another way to say conservation.

In the fall we gather the seeds of our future before we burn the stalks. The little things are ever passing, so there is no sense in wasting, there is no sense in assuaging Madame Fortune day by day; all the ills we want, and kick at, all the woes we throw a brick at, all the griefs we stall and stick at, soon, full soon, will pass away. When we're hot we surely show it, saying things to shock a poet, rude things—then, before we know it, summer has gone up the flume, having run this thing of frustration, we, with blizzards round us flying, watch the wintry weather, sighing in a brand new kind of gloom.

Conservation is a better name than preservation in a way. There is a wide shade of distinction between the two words. If you should put a nice leg of mutton in a refrigerator you would preserve it, but who would you benefit? If you cut off from time to time what your family want to eat, using up the small bits that were left on the platter for a savory stew, and finally using the bones for soup, you conserve it. That is you use every bit of it for the satisfaction of your family's hunger, in so careful a way that it goes twice as far as it would in the hands of a careless housekeeper.

There isn't a mother in the state, scarcely, but what could learn a beneficial lesson from what our government is doing along these lines. To the little refuse in many homes makes the chicken happy. All these little things are conservation on a small scale, just as your teaching your children not to be stingy but to conserve waste is in a larger way. When every woman that has a child is young and the supply of everything seemed without limit, the people took advantage of the government's indifference. Private parties took for their own, lands which belonged to all of us. In our country in California fourteen thousand acres were taken by one man alone. He was unscrupulous enough to take advantage of our then loosely-drawn land laws.

I have heard from a very large number of women concerning the proposed woman's exchange that this paper is planning to start, if the women want it, ask every woman that has not written to please do so now, address all mail to the Woman's Clearing House, care of Gazette.

Bound to Have Some Kick.
"Don't you want to see the world a place of complete peace and harmony?" "No," replied Mr. Growcher. "Just as soon as you get the world peaceful and harmonious a lot of people will arise and kick because competition has been eliminated."

SALAD MAKING.

All hostesses like to serve salads attractively and we are all longing to find some new and fetching way of presenting old materials.

Almost anything it is said except milk and flour may be made into a salad, yet we would avoid the combination of foods which do not harmonize as we avoid inviting to our tables those whom we know are not congenial to our friends.

Carrots, potatoes, turnips and such vegetables are cooked before combining in a salad. Cut in cubes, or balls. Beets are sliced or if small left whole.

Food value should come first in the making of a salad especially where it is to form the main part of a meal, like a luncheon.

Then the arranging and garnishing is a feature most important. Who has not turned away from a perfectly good and wholesome salad because it looked messy and unattractive? The perfection of combination and flavor count for nothing if the salad has been carelessly prepared.

When meats and potatoes are used a salad is always improved if these stand in seasoned dressing for a while before combining.

If green plants as lettuce, cress, parsley and such green things are used, they should be crisp and fresh.

The tiny red radish is one of the most charming of garnishes to use either in slices, whole, or cut to resemble a flower.

Rings from red and green peppers the coral of the tomato in fact there is no color combination which cannot be delightfully managed with vegetables.

The point to a salad is its flavor, and if it is elusive and unnamable so much the better, we all like mystery in a degree even in our food.

The salad dressing is another important consideration. The simplest is the French, the most popular is mayonnaise.

For French dressing one part of vinegar with three parts oil is a good proportion, with salt and pepper to taste. A teaspoonful of powdered sugar is liked by many.

and then washing with warm water and soap.

Add two tablespoonfuls of ammonia to every four quarts of water with which windows are washed.

If you want a good thing to use for scraping kettles, split a common moon clothes pin in half and try it. The soft wood does not mar the most delicate enamel.

A little sugar or molasses added to the stove polish gives a brighter and more lasting polish; also prevents so much dust.

THE TABLE.

Banana Chutney: Five bananas, one cupful of whipped cream, one heaping tablespoonful of powdered gelatin, two tablespoonfuls of sugar, one wine-glassful of brandy, half a cupful of boiling water, and a few Maraschino cherries. Rub the bananas through a sieve, then add to them the gelatin dissolved with the water, sugar, brandy and whip cream. Mix and turn into wet mold to become firm. When unmolded for serving, garnish with the cherries.

Meat Loaf With Eggs: Chop one pound of meat, beef and one-half pound of veal, with salt, pepper, pork, very fine, mix well. Add one raw egg beaten light, and four crackers, rolled fine. Mix with two teaspoonfuls of salt, and one level teaspoonful of paprika. Form into an oblong roll, packing firmly. Then make a groove through the center. Put in this groove four hard-cooked eggs, and to end, press together, patting the meat to make it very firm. Roll the meat in bread crumbs, put in a buttered baking pan and bake for two and a quarter hours, basting occasionally with melted butter. When the meat loaf is sliced, there should be a slice of egg in each piece of meat. If the eggs were put in properly and carefully. Serve garnished with chopped aspic jelly and parsley.

Rice and Corn Muffins: One cupful of corn meal, one cupful of cold cooked rice, half a teaspoonful of salt, two teaspoonfuls of baking powder, a quarter of a cupful of milk, two heaping tablespoonfuls of melted butter, mix corn meal, salt and baking powder, add rice, beat well, then add eggs, well-beaten, milk and butter, beat well. Pour into buttered and floured gem pans, and bake half an hour.

Scalloped Tomatoes: Six large ripe tomatoes, or half a can of tomatoes, three tablespoonfuls of butter, one finely chopped onion, half a teaspoonful of salt, one saltspoonful of white pepper, and six slices of bread. Put a layer of bread in the bottom of a buttered baking dish, then a layer of peeled sliced tomatoes, a layer of chopped onion, salt and pepper and a few pieces of butter; then add another layer of bread. Put over pieces of butter and bake in a hot oven for half an hour.

Advantage of Eucalyptus.

It requires more than a century for a cedar tree to grow large enough to yield a 30-foot telephone pole. The eucalyptus will attain a larger growth in 30 years, and its wood is quite as lasting.

WANTS TO ABOLISH STATE LEGISLATURE

CHIEF SENATE CLERK WYLIE URGES UNICAMERAL PLAN AS MOST SCIENTIFIC.

WHOLE SYSTEM WRONG

Points to Defects and Fallacies in Present Legislative Methods Which Result in Obnoxious Laws.

"The legislature as at present constituted should be abolished. In its place should be a one house body of from nine to fifteen members elected for comparatively long terms. This reform cannot safely precede, but should immediately follow the adoption of the initiative, referendum and recall. Until the legislature is so constituted, law-making will continue to be a combination of fortune and misfortune, and not the scientific process of modern industry and civilization require."

This statement was made today by Senate Chief Clerk F. M. Wylie, in discussing the length of this session of the legislature and the many legislative mistakes that have been made during the session. Mr. Wylie has been a clerk of the senate for five successive sessions, being chief clerk for the last two. He also was in Washington during two sessions of Congress, as secretary to the legislative committee, and as assistant to Senator La Follette. He is closely allied with the progressive republican party, is connected with the republican state central committee, is secretary of the Progressive Legislative News Bureau, and is close to the La Follette leaders in the state. His statement may, therefore, be significant of a big new progressive issue on the horizon.

"The legislature as at present constituted is fundamentally wrong," continued Mr. Wylie. "It was evolved out of the conditions and thought of the middle ages. It was a great forward step at that time for it wrought more general legislation than the feudal lords. Right of Kings, but its inadequacies may be traced from the time of its origin, and with greater clearness as history nears our own time. It is entirely unscientific and completely out of touch with the modern age, and other problems that face modern civilization."

"Having for five sessions observed the innermost details of our cumbersome legislative machinery in the state, and having during the same time observed at first hand the same unwieldy machinery on a larger scale in Washington, I have had a growing impression of what would be ludicrous if it were not so serious. The enormous consequences in the attempts of modern scientific thought and method to work with this amateur law-making device."

"The device in this country had a singleness of purpose to represent the people and the states. As problems of legislation have grown in size and complication, the increasing membership due to the growth of the country has made less adequate this legislative tool of the representative government, so that with the requirements steadily increasing, and its competency steadily decreasing, the hopelessness of the system itself is becoming more and more evident."

"During five sessions of the Wisconsin legislature, I have sat day after day and seen members groping in the dark on vital involved questions that they were compelled to determine in a few moments. Day after day, I have seen the houses of the legislature solemnly pass acts that a school boy could pick to pieces. Time after time, I have seen bills pass upon an explanation by a single member that fifteen minutes investigation would lead to the erroneous conclusion that the reason that the system did not afford to each member the fifteen minutes on each bill. Time after time, I have seen legislation admittedly bad pass, legislation admittedly good fail, through the forces that place upon a constituted and organized a body, or by reason of its sheer cumbersome ness."

"As in everything else of course, individuals and parties are responsible for the consequences of the system. But the most thoroughly able men in the nation have sat in the legislatures and in congress, and they have accomplished such wonderful results in the past that the possibilities of the system, that it gives rise to regretful conjecture as to what they might have accomplished with an adequate and scientific legislative organization with which to work."

"When the initiative, referendum, and recall shall be facts, such an organization may be provided. These levers of direct control in the hands of the people are more direct and more effective powers than the small district, short term and double house safeguards that are the main structure of our present legislative system. With the initiative, referendum, and recall, a large district, long term body will be safer than our present legislative body, even from a representative point of view. With these the people will have continuous control of the representative's position continuous power of veto, and continuous power of direct legislation. When the present great causes of legislative inefficiency may be abolished. The law-making branch of the government may be composed of one house in Wisconsin of from nine to fifteen members, elected for comparatively long terms, and compensated for their whole time by adequate annual salaries. The body may sit continuously and meet questions of legislation as they arise. Safeguards may be thrown about the passage of legislation on short notice and about undue delay by requirements similar to the three-fifths appropriation and tax quorum, the constitutional amendments majority of members elected, and the banking law two-thirds of members of our present constitution."

"Each member may vote upon his own knowledge and mastery of the subject. All important questions may be considered by a committee of the whole, and every member benefit by the special knowledge and information of experts and of parties directly concerned, instead of this opportunity being confined to small committees and the great bulk of the membership having to decide upon faith, prejudice and guess-work, the only methods available under the present system. In a body of ten or fifteen men, questions may be so debated and thrashed out that all master the subject and the resulting statute contain the best thought of each. Scientific legislation would be the profession practically the sole occupation of the members of such a body. Instead of law-making being a transitory incident for a few days each week of a few months once or twice in a busy and engrossed lifetime, as it is with most of the members of present legislatures, this plan will not be a nuisance for all legislative and governmental ills. It will have its own peculiar problems to meet in its own constitution, and will retain weaknesses inherent in any representative law-making body, but it will be so great an improvement over the present antiquated system, that the old legislature will in a few years after its adoption be, like the crude implements of the stone age, one of the curios of history."

"This idea is not entirely new. It has been officially recommended by the Governor of Kansas and I do not know but what it may have been advanced in one way or another in Oregon and some other states. I am thoroughly convinced that a few years will see it taking the place of the old system. The initiative, referendum, and recall, instead of bringing in an era of unscientific law-making, as their opponents profess to fear, will in this way make possible scientific law-making within the direct and absolute control of the people."

SIDEWALK SKETCHES

THE GOOD OLD DAYS.
(By Howard L. Rann.)

The good old days are a reminiscent period which a man delights to talk about when you couldn't drag him back to the farm with a rope and tackle. The farther he gets away from them the better they look, and the longer he looks at them the more convinced he becomes that he was never really happy except when doing the chores.

In the good old days people slept in houses so full of leaks that you could throw a setting hen through the siding without ruffling a feather. The boys always slept on stairs, in a room built as close to the north wind as possible, where they could look up through the roof and watch the snow pile up on the foot of the bed. If one of the boys turned over before morning, he would start an avalanche which was always sure to land in somebody's boots. If you have never slept in a north room in the dead of winter, with the frost breaking through the bedding ever and anon and running up and down your person, you will not know what home comfort is.

In the good old days the chores on the farm were done before anybody was up except some sleepy walking rooster with the asthma. It was first necessary to go out and wake up the cows, so that they could be operated upon before the milk turned into a human jelly. Then the other domestic animals were juggled with in jig time, after which the juggler returned to the house to thaw out, filling the kitchen with the fragrant fumes of burning wood. There were no stoves, a person who was thoroughly cooled had to buck up to an open fireplace and revolve rapidly on one heel, to keep from becoming parboiled in front and frost-bitten behind.

In the good old days people slept in Rockford socks and the fear of slow death, mingled with salt pork three times a day and seldom saw anybody except the circuit rider and the undertaker. If the modern farmer were asked to exchange these degenerate times for the good old days, he would start a riot that would make the Turkish war look like a sophomore cane rush.

Summer Foods As Cause of Dyspepsia

Many Also Get Diarrhoea—What To Do in Either Case.

Summer ought to be the months of most perfect health, but owing to contaminated water and milk, unripe fruit, germs and insects the average of health is not good at this time of the year. There is much skin trouble from acid fruits, and much dyspepsia and diarrhoea from cold foods and iced beverages.

The skin trouble is easily stopped by discontinuing fruit for a few days, and by the use of a mild laxative to clean the bowels and tone the blood. The dyspepsia is likewise corrected by the use of a laxative that has combined with it the elements of a digestive tonic. Hence the best remedy to use is Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, which, as its name indicates, is a pleasant laxative combined with the virtues of pepsin, which we all know is the best cure for indigestion.

Use Syrup Pepsin also for summer diarrhoea. Avoid astringents, physics and cathartics, as they are unnecessarily harsh. Thousands of good American families prefer Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, among them those of Mrs. W. A. Taylor, Beloit, Wis., who finds she can give it to her baby without causing cramps or pain, and Mrs. Wm. O. Richter, Clayville, Washington St., Monticello, Ill.

Va., who considers it a laxative tonic absolutely unexcelled. They know of no pleasanter cure for constipation, liver trouble, indigestion, summer diarrhoea, etc. It is valuable to all the family from infancy to old age. Children love its taste. All druggists sell it at fifty cents and one dollar a bottle, the latter being the family size.

Families wishing to try a free sample bottle can obtain it, postpaid, by addressing Dr. W. B. Caldwell, 418 and Mrs. Wm. O. Richter, Clayville, Washington St., Monticello, Ill.

THE TRUTH—and the PROOF

"Words and promises are only good when backed up by deeds."

This axiom is just as true today as it was when Socrates uttered it hundreds of years ago.

And I attribute my success as a specialist, principally to the facts, that I never attempt to treat cases that are incurable, and second that I back up my claims by absolute proof.

Marinette, 8-23-10. Green Bay, Wis., 4-3-11.

To Whom It May Concern:—

This is to certify that I was cured of Kidney trouble which I had suffered from for two years, and doctored with several doctors without any relief, from the severe pain, and constant desire to pass water. I also was two months at St. Joseph's Hospital, without benefit.

Soon after starting with Dr. Goddard I began to improve and am now entirely well. My water is normal in looks and by test. The Doctor treated me honestly and fairly in every way, and I can recommend him as honest and a skillful physician.

"And fighting fairly, too, I know. Dear, you'd never take an unfair advantage of—"

"Politics," answered Mark. "Is war. And war is the science of finding the weakest point in your enemy's armor and hammering away at it till he yields. For instance, we've just found the weakest sort of spot in Standish's armor and—"

"You have? What is it?" "There are only two weak spots in most men's armor. One is money crookedness. The other is women. In Standish's case it was a woman. An affair he got tangled up in five years ago."

"And you'll stoop to use such a weapon as that?" she cried indignantly.

"Why not? He'd use the same sort of weapon against us, fast enough; if he had it."

"But that isn't fair fighting, Mark. It's disgusting scandal."

"That's his lookout, not ours. If he chanced to know something damaging in my private life, he'd use it in a minute."

"But if I asked you—if I begged you—"

"Don't ask me, dear. This is one of the things you don't understand. You'll have to leave it to me."

"Perhaps," she returned caressingly, "I may understand it far better than you do. You say there's a woman concerned in it. This scandal will pillory her and—"

"That type of woman belongs in the pillory."

"You are cruel!" she cried. "You yourself admit that there is a chance the woman may have repented. Are you going to refuse her the benefit of that chance?"

"The chance is too small to be considered. Don't let's talk of it. You can't—"

"Then," she continued, unheeding, "there's something else you don't consider. So may have married. She may be the wife of some honorable man who loves her and thinks she is perfect. All his heart and all his ideals may be bound up in her. Are you going to ruin his life, too?"

"Dear," married Mark, "the sort of fool who marries women of that kind (like the man who teaches his wife to be a 'dead game sport') deserves what he gets. And generally he gets it. Though, in both cases, he doesn't always find it out. Don't waste sympathy on him. If he married her he probably knew what she was. If he didn't know, it's his time he learned. No sane man should want to live in a fool's paradise."

"But her family! Her parents? Her brothers or sisters? Surely they aren't to blame. And they will be disgraced, too."

"Such things are rather apt to run in families. Cankered flowers don't grow from clean roots. You're wasting a lot of sympathy over a woman and a man who are unworthy to speak your dear name. There are your father and the rest, getting out of the elevator now. Go to bed, dear girl, and try to get a good rest. Don't sit up for me. I'll probably be up all night on this Standish affair. Good night, sweetheart."

As he bent to kiss her, her arms clung to his neck like a frightened child's. She tried to speak, faltered, and hurried from the room.

CHAPTER XVI.

Sixty Seconds Leeway.

In they trooped, Jim Blake at their head—Van Dyke, Neligan, Gregg, and (sulkily bringing up the rear) Tom.

Grace had quitted the library at her husband's order. Now, starkly unashamed of the eavesdropper's role, she was standing tense, expectant, her ear to the closed door leading to the inner rooms. Through the thin panel she could hear every syllable from the library. Her own name was the first word she caught.

"Grace turned in?" Jim Blake was asking; and Robertson replied:

"Yes. She's all tired out. We can talk freely here. No one will interrupt. Sit down. The cigars are over there. And here's the Scotch."

"Has Standish been around yet?" queried Van Dyke.

"Oh, he'll be here all right," vouchsafed Blake, before Mark could answer. "He knows we've got him in a hole. He'll—"

"But have we?" argued Van Dyke. "As far as I can see, it's still the other way around."

"It's bad enough to be delayed by anything," fumed Mark. "But it's ten times worse when we're blocked by a damned little—by the person who got this information," he corrected himself, catching a warning glint from Blake's half-shut eyes.

"Whatever the price is," suggested Gregg. "I say pay it! Pay it and save time."

"No," contradicted Blake, his glance shifting as if by accident to Tom. "Her—the price is too high."

"Too high?" snorted Neligan on whom the undercurrent of Blake's refusal was entirely lost. "It's the first time we've ever economized."

Before Blake could reply the buzzer sounded.

"There's Standish, now," said Jim. Let him in, Neligan. Take the lead from me, all of you. And don't disgrace me by acting like wild asses of the desert."

Neligan, in obedience to his chief, had opened the outer door. Standish, after a quick and seemingly indifferent look that itemized the room's occupants, walked forward. Neligan carefully closed the door behind him.

The men nodded stiffly, uncomfortably, in response to the visitor's slight bow.

"Good evening, gentlemen," said Standish pleasantly. "This setting of the stages seems to suggest Daniel in the lions' den. I hope none of you has made the error of casting me for the role of Daniel."

Neligan's lips few apart with the force of a retort that leaped to them. But the words were never formulated. For Blake, beaming on the newcomer like a father upon his dearest loved son, exclaimed affectionately:

"Why, how are you, my boy? How are you? Take a chair. Neligan, get him a—"

"Thanks," declined Standish. "I can talk better on my feet."

"Oh!" deprecated Blake, in pathetic disappointment. "You've come to talk; I was hoping you had come to—"

"To lie down?" supplemented Standish.

"Well," answered Blake oracularly, "the man who lies down can get up again. But the man who is knocked down, is apt to take the count."

"The question is this, Mr. Standish," broke in Mark, impatiently at his father-in-law's slower method of reaching the point. "Will you support us, or will you not?"

"I will not," returned Standish. "Or at least resign your leadership."

"No. I thought we had settled all that."

"Then," asked Van Dyke, "you are prepared to take the consequences, Mr. Standish?"

"If there are consequences—yes."

"Oh, there'll be consequences, all right," Blake assured him. "Hell's full of 'consequences.' So you won't even protect the woman?"

"You haven't found her yet?"

"No?" smiled Blake. "So, I told you there was a trap. Well, it caught her. And we'll have her name in half an hour at most. Probably sooner. If you think that's a bluff, you're welcome to. But you've only a half-hour to keep on thinking it."

"Look here, gentlemen," said Standish, turning to the others. "All this does not interest me in the least. I came here tonight for just one reason—to appeal to your sense of justice."

A ripple of derision from his hearers stirred his slow voice to slightly faster measure.

"You can't beat me," he went on. "And you know it as well as I do. I am secure. But, for the sake of others, I ask you not to make political capital out of something in my private life."

Gregg's loose mouth parted in a grin. Neligan laughed aloud. But Mark Robertson could see no humor in the situation.

"You're wrong, Standish," he declared. "This scandal will beat you."

"Let us suppose, for argument's sake, that it would," agreed Standish. "Can't I appeal to your honor? Won't you fight fairly?"

"We'll publish the truth," retorted Mark. "If that's unfair."

"It is unfair. If not to me, then to the woman."

"It is too late to go into that matter now, Mr. Standish. Your presence here tonight is, by itself, strong proof against you; if further proof were needed."

Standish made a gesture of weary impatience.

"Proof?" he echoed. "I don't deny the story. You wouldn't dare use it if you couldn't prove it. But, gentlemen, there comes a time—even in politics—when we've got to be men first and politicians afterward."

"Then," suggested Blake, "be a man. Give up the fight."

"No," replied Standish. "I won't be blackmailed. The affair was over and done with before I asked the people to accept me as their leader. Long before. It has no bearing on my present fitness."

"That's your misfortune," sneered Mark. "The people have a right to know who represent them. In the newspaper articles we have prepared, there are no facts we cannot prove; your affair with the woman—your failure to carry out your pledges to marry her—"

"Then the story is written?" exclaimed Standish.

"It is in type," put in Van Dyke, "and waiting our word to send it out to the whole country."

"I see," mused Standish. "And I see how such a story will be handled in print. You'll use every trick of suggestion, every fact inferring a lie—"

"And," cried Mark, "it will beat you. It will beat you, man—and that's what we've been working for, for years."

"I'm not beaten yet," retorted Standish. "And I advise you, Governor Robertson, to be careful—"

"Oh, we shall be careful," returned Van Dyke. "The proprietor of the hotel is coming tonight. The hotel where Mr. and Mrs. Fowler were registered. We may not need him to identify her. But he'll be on hand in case we do. Take my word for it, Mr. Standish, you'll save a great deal of unnecessary trouble if you'll quietly step down and out."

"If I did," said Standish, "I would be politically dead. You know that."

"You're politically dead, anyway," insisted Mark. "If this story will beat you tonight it will beat you 20 years from today. Particularly if this woman proves to be—what shall we call it?—a trifle off color?"

"Robertson!"

"Ah! That hurts, does it? Then it's probably true. If the woman is the kind that—that would not do you credit, you can understand how much more effective it will be."

"You are wrong!" denied Standish. "She is of good family. She—"

"She may have been a good woman when you found her," said Mark. "But there must have been a bad streak in her, somewhere. You left her to sink as low as I expect to find her and—"

"Drop that, Mark!" burst out Tom Blake, jumping from his seat and confronting his brother-in-law. "Don't! I can't listen to it any longer. Standish is right. What you men are doing is vile. If you've got a scrap of manhood left in the whole bunch of you, you won't drag this woman into your dirty schemes. I—"

"Oh," drawled Blake with the air of a sleepy man bothered by a fly, "for the love of Mike, don't you butt in! The situation's plain enough as it is, without your laying your trophies of idiocy at its feet."

"Idiocy?" flared Tom. "Perhaps common decency's a better term. Or perhaps in your vocabulary the two mean the same thing. You men are known as political leaders. The public looks to you for examples. And yet you stoop to a curish trick like this! Isn't there enough whiteness in the whole lot of you for a single voice to protest against such use of a woman's name? You've just been told she's of good family. That she has a name to lose. And you answer: 'Political necessity!' You know this story will destroy at least two lives. Probably several more. And again you answer: 'Political necessity!' You have the power to ruin these lives. If you use that power, I tell you now, one and all—my father as well as the rest—I'm ashamed to have breathed the same air with you!"

Liszt a Dry Smoker.

Liszt was a dry smoker of a peculiar type. Massenet, who knew him well in his later years tells us that Liszt could not play unless he had a cigar in his mouth, which he never troubled to light. He would sit down to the piano with a cigar between his teeth and keep munching it all the time he played. When the cigar was quite eaten up, the Abbe would rise from the instrument exhausted.

because as she passed my window in her fall I heard her say, 'Now for a bump.'

Horrible English Words.

One can easily add to Victor Hugo's list of horrible English words. "Gentle," for instance, is an adjective that sets the teeth on edge, and "select" (used as an adjective) is another word that only a second rate person would select. "Emerge" and "transpire" are both repulsive to use and any breakfast is always spoiled when a correspondent "thanks him in anticipation," or a tailor asks him to come and try on his "esteemed favor"—meaning trousers.

"And fighting fairly, too, I know. Dear, you'd never take an unfair advantage of—"

"Politics," answered Mark. "Is war. And war is the science of finding the weakest point in your enemy's armor and hammering away at it till he yields. For instance, we've just found the weakest sort of spot in Standish's armor and—"

"You have? What is it?" "There are only two weak spots in most men's armor. One is money crookedness. The other is women. In Standish's case it was a woman. An affair he got tangled up in five years ago."

"And you'll stoop to use such a weapon as that?" she cried indignantly.

"Why not? He'd use the same sort of weapon against us, fast enough; if he had it."

"But that isn't fair fighting, Mark. It's disgusting scandal."

"That's his lookout, not ours. If he chanced to know something damaging in my private life, he'd use it in a minute."

"But if I asked you—if I begged you—"

"Don't ask me, dear. This is one of the things you don't understand. You'll have to leave it to me."

"Perhaps," she returned caressingly, "I may understand it far better than you do. You say there's a woman concerned in it. This scandal will pillory her and—"

"That type of woman belongs in the pillory."

"You are cruel!" she cried. "You yourself admit that there is a chance the woman may have repented. Are you going to refuse her the benefit of that chance?"

"The chance is too small to be considered. Don't let's talk of it. You can't—"

"Then," she continued, unheeding, "there's something else you don't consider. So may have married. She may be the wife of some honorable man who loves her and thinks she is perfect. All his heart and all his ideals may be bound up in her. Are you going to ruin his life, too?"

"Dear," married Mark, "the sort of fool who marries women of that kind (like the man who teaches his wife to be a 'dead game sport') deserves what he gets. And generally he gets it. Though, in both cases, he doesn't always find it out. Don't waste sympathy on him. If he married her he probably knew what she was. If he didn't know, it's his time he learned. No sane man should want to live in a fool's paradise."

"But her family! Her parents? Her brothers or sisters? Surely they aren't to blame. And they will be disgraced, too."

"Such things are rather apt to run in families. Cankered flowers don't grow from clean roots. You're wasting a lot of sympathy over a woman and a man who are unworthy to speak your dear name. There are your father and the rest, getting out of the elevator now. Go to bed, dear girl, and try to get a good rest. Don't sit up for me. I'll probably be up all night on this Standish affair. Good night, sweetheart."

As he bent to kiss her, her arms clung to his neck like a frightened child's. She tried to speak, faltered, and hurried from the room.

OLIVE OIL.
Under the Pure Food Law all oil made from olives is pure olive oil, yet there is as much difference in olive oil as there is in butter.
Cheap olive oil is made from olives that through cause of decay, insects or storms fall to the ground. Sound, healthy olives stay on the trees until ripe, like our apples. They are then gathered, the oil pressed without heat. This is virgin olive oil. The second pressing is obtained with steam and hot water, which is known as fine table oil. The rich flavor and medicinal properties are found only in the virgin oil which is of a greenish-yellow color. It is very nutritious. Used in nervous diseases is a mild laxative; has a great reputation as a remedy for stones in the bladder, and is a skin food and complexion beautifier through its action on the liver. The supply of this virgin oil is always limited. It is quickly bought up for medicinal purposes and found only in drug stores. Mr. Pfennig, our Graduate Pharmacist and Chemist, personally tests olive oil. You are therefore positive of obtaining the true virgin oil imported direct from Southern France. We sell it at 40c one-half pint, 75c a full pint bottle. Get it at our store, The Badger Drug Co., Milwaukee & River streets. The Drug Store that makes a specialty of Drugs.

PUBLIC NOTICE.

Persons Answering Fraudulent Advertisements Asked to Notify Gazette.

The Gazette is desirous of keeping out of its columns, fraudulent advertising and asks the assistance of its patrons to that end.

There are many number of concerns in the country who make a living through a nicely worded advertisement, offering golden opportunities, and these unscrupulous people find fertile ground for work among the masses.

Many orders are received in the Gazette mail for advertising which are returned as objectionable and where there is a question as to the qualifications the advertisement is omitted. All newspapers have this experience.

But even with the utmost care there will be an occasional advertisement which will pass the scrutiny of the business department of the paper, and find its way into the columns.

The Gazette will deem it a favor if you will report to the office any trouble which may have been experienced through the answering of such an advertisement.

FORTY YEARS AGO

Janesville Daily Gazette, August 8, 1873.

During the storm last night the house of J. B. Miner, in the town of Beloit, was struck by lightning, the field tearing off considerable plaster from the inside and shattering the roof, but doing no other damage. This is the third time that Mr. Miner's premises have received a similar visit within the last year and the triple circumstance destroys our faith in the comforting saying that lightning never strikes twice in the same place. It is like the kick of the gazzelled eyed mule—liable to be repeated at any moment.

The four young men who were arrested a short time ago near the northern limits of the city on the suspicion of their connection with the theft of Mrs. Whiting's pocket book, were brought before Justice Smith this morning charged with the above offense. Their case was adjourned to the ninth.

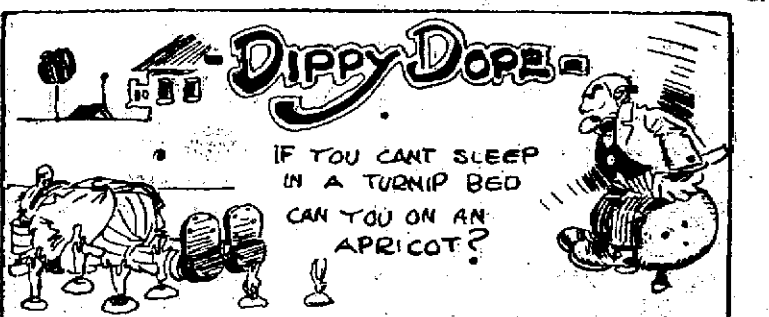

The heavy storms of Thursday night prostrated the wheat, and oats but the injury would have been of little importance if last night's storm had not come in and finished the work. We fear that the matured grain is badly lodged in the consequence of this last storm and that both its quality and quantity impaired. But potatoes and tobacco needed moisture badly and these drizzling rains came just in time to help them. We hear rumors of a destructive wind in the northeast portion of the country last night but can obtain nothing authentic.

The fire authorities of Milwaukee have been testing the new linen fire hose and have found that it is perfectly satisfactory to meet all the demands that the local fire department could put it to use.
